

Why your health supplements need to be manufactured in a pharmaceutical facility

Natural medicines and health supplements are effective, protective and have many health benefits. But they are also very fragile:

During the manufacturing process, natural medicines and nutrients are susceptible to destruction by oxidation, heat, humidity during storage and manufacturing, and contamination by bacteria and mould. The raw materials themselves can have excessive amounts of pesticides, heavy metals and other toxins. Therefore, pharmaceutical hygiene, knowledge and care must be applied to the extraction, blending, humidity and temperature control, manufacturing, storage and testing of natural medicines.

In most cases, pharmaceutical controls are not adhered to since most supplement manufacturers in South Africa maintain their supplements are "food" supplements and thus don't require "pharmaceutical" controls.

SOLAL Technologies is different. We are a pharmaceutical company. Unlike most manufacturers, our natural medicines and nutraceuticals are manufactured in a licensed pharmaceutical facility and we adhere to pharmaceutical quality controls. This licence is known as a "section 22C licence" issued by the Medicine Control Council. If your supplements aren't manufactured in a section 22C licensed pharmaceutical facility (and in South Africa, almost none are), then there is no guarantee of quality, purity and potency.

Pharmaceutical and medical expertise. SOLAL Technologies has a team of six full-time employed doctors and specialists, seven pharmacists, two nutritionists and a dietician. Together, we ensure that only the safest, purest and most effective forms of vitamins, minerals and plant extracts are used in SOLAL products. At SOLAL's Integrative Medical Centre in Bryanston, Gauteng, our medical experts practise preventive medicine, helping to prevent and treat disease at its root cause, using natural healing medicines, rather than merely treating the symptoms with pharmaceuticals alone.
